Loss of the Propellor Dacotah !

The rumor of which we spoke in the Sun-TINEL of yesterday morning, turns out to be too true. The Propeller Dacotah, Captain W. S. Choss, suffered total shipwreek on Lake Erie, during the dreadful storm of Saturday last, and all on board are supposed to have perished. The Dacotak was a first-class propeller, and had on a full cargo of merchandize for Lake Michigan ports. This loss is covered, in part, if not in whole, by insurance; but there is another loss that no insurance can compensate. It is the loss of life: the loss of twenty or thirty stout seamen; the loss, above all, of Captain Will-LIAM S. Choss, of this city, as true a man, as good a sailor, as ever trod a vess-l's

Capt. Cross had been a resident of this city for twenty-two years past, and was loved and honored by all who knew him. He was one of our dearest friends, and we mourn his loss as that of a brother. Unright, honorable, true-hearted, outspoken; with a host of friends and not a single ensmy; our whole city grieves over his melancholy fats.

Captain Canss was nearly 43 years old, and leaves a wife and two young children to lament his sad and sudden death. Tho sympathies of our entire community are with the widow and the orphans, in their allifoting bereavement.

Goy, Randall's Thanksgiving Proclamation. The News of yesterday contains a proolamation from the "Presidium of the Hebrew "all the Hebrew citizens of the State" to observe Thursday; next (to merrow) as a day of Thankegiving. This is all right. But the News, thinks it necessary, for political purposes, to accompany the proclamation with the following addendum: With the following addenaum:

Those who have given the proclamation of Gov.
Randall but a cursory glance, may not have observed that he calls not upon all men, but Christians obly to oriebrate that day. Soit its, however, and since his partiality is calculated to cut off from the enjoyment of the day a large class of chinears, the Betwee citisens of dis State have of circulated to "go it on their own hook," and have issued one foregoing proclamation.

that is in error in this matter. Mr. Sucen is and always has been a Democrat, and never held office under Gan. Kino, or during his term of office, as Superintendent. But the News, though wrong as to this fact, is right in what it eays about Mr. Shore being quently at Mould & Numsen's, the Surgeon entitled to a fair trial, regardless of his politics. He has had such a trial, before one of the best juries we ever saw in the Municipal Court; and they were about equally divided

A COMPLIMENT TO VICE PRESIDENT HAMLIN.-The Hon, W. S. LINDSAY, who was in this country as the representative of the British shipping interest, paid the following deserved tribute to Mr. HAMLIN in his speech before the Philadelphia Board of Trade:

Hannibal Hamlin of Maine. He spent an afternoon at the quiet residence of this gentleman, and felt bound to say that for comprehensive knowledge of those commercial and mari-time questions in which both nations are in-terested, he had met with no gentleman so fully versed as the gentleman just elected Vice President of the United States."

DAILY, TRI-WEEKLY & WREELY RUFUS KING, EDITOR-WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOV. 28, 1860

The Account between North and South. While the Northern Democratic papers, with rare exceptions, are charging upon the North, exclusively, the responsibility of the present disturbed state of public feeling and hold up the South as the aggrieved party; there are presses in the Slave States that take a fairer view of the question, and plain. ly show that the North has more intolerable wrongs and greater grievances to complain of at the hands of the South, than the South can claim toor prove against the North . Thus the clamor so persistently raised about the "personal liberty laws," and their effect upon the enforcement of the Fugitive Slave Act, the Missouri Democrat responds by the following artiking recital of Southern aggressions upon the North: "But how stands the account between the North and the South? Which section has more offended against the Constitution, which says that the citizens of each State shall be entified to all privileges and immunities of citizens of the several States? Have not citizens of the Free States been persecuted, robbed, lynched, expelled, or hanged in many of the Slave States? The atrocities in Texas are still frysh in the public recollection, and some of them are too shocking to relate. Ministers of the gospel, teachers, governesses, artisans, commercial travelers, peddlers, Yankees, Irishmen and Germans, have been tarred and feathered, acourged and driven out, hanged, and burned at the stake by ruffan mots in the Slave States, on bare suspicion, or on the testimony of negroes.

The American citizen from a Free State who finds himself in South Carolina, Georgia or Texas, has no safeguard in the Constitution of his country. It is a dead letter as far as he individually is concerned. He may cry out under the scourge, I am an American citizen, but it will not reduce the number of his stripes. Neither can he obtain the slightest redress. Systematic outrage of this nature by Southern mobs is the principal cause of the opposition evinced by some of the Northern States to the Fugitive Slave Law. What a sorry figure South Carolina cuts in making complaints of the North, when she has the audabily to put colored citizens of Massachusetts in irons, who happen to come into Charleston in Northern vessels? We say that all laws should be enforced; that even the Fugitive Slave Law should be enforced to the letter, but nevertheless we say that the South should pluck the beam out of its own eye bebrother. Are there no rights but the rights of slaveholders?

Citizens from the Free States residing in, or traveling through the Slave States, have been robbed, not only of their constitutional, but of their natural rights; robbed not only of the right of domicile and transit, but of their property, their freedom, and their lives. If the thing be at all practicable, let new guarantees be interchanged for mainthining the inviolability of the Constitution in every one of the thirty-three States; but if it is not practicable, let the complaining Southern States come before the National tribunal with clean hands; let them secure to Northern and foreign-born citizens within their jurisdiction the common rights conferred by the Constitution of the United States, or at once abandon the role of injured innoe-nee, and cease their clamors about the violation of the Fugitive Slave Law."

The Voice of a Southern Statesman. The Hon. A. H. Sternens, of Georgia, is not only the ablest son of the "Empire State of the South," but has no superior among sent state of public feeling at the South, comes forward to deprecate the Secession movement and to declare for the Union, all lovers of their country must hall the omen as an auspicious one, and may well believe that, with such leaders, the people of Georgia will refuse to follow the mad example of South Carolina. Mr. STEPHENS addressed his fellow citizens in the Hall of the House of Representatives at Milledgeville, on the evening of Nov. 14th, 1860, in pursuance of of Reprezentatives at Milledgeville, on the evening of Nov. 14th, 1800, in pursuance of an invitation from men of all parties. As we have not room for the whole of his speech, we must content ourselves with expring the most significant portions.

After a few prefaratory remarks Mr, Strew year along the feether of the feether with the pointedly expressed his views upon the oft mosted question at the South, whicher the mere fact of Mr. Lincoln's chection is good ground for Succession.

'The first question that presents itsolf is shall the people of the South seeded from the Union in consequence of the election of Mr. Lincoln to the presidency fractive candidg and carrierly, that I do not think this that without it I suppose he thinks we have done this in spite of it. Mr. Stremsne—My honorable friend says that cannot the southern States law under the government and presention in consequence of the election of Mr. Lincoln to the presidency fractive candidg and carrierly, that I do not think thick that they copill the propose of the South seeded from the Union. It tought to shall by and and aid this material to shall by and and aid till material from the Union. It tought to shall by and and aid till material from the Union. It tought to shall by and and aid till material from the Union. It tought to shall by and and aid till material from the Union. It tought to shall by and and aid till material from the Union. It tought to shall by and and aid till material from the Union in the condition of a man to the presidency and that the variety of the Union to the government, to without the government as it exists, there is the whole from prefer the Union and tought the fact of the Union to the Control of the Cont selves. Withdraw ourselves from it?

Would we not be in the wrong? Whatever fate is to befall this country, let it never be laid to the charge of the people of the South, and especially to the people of theorem, that we were untrue to our national engagements. Let the fault and the wrong rist upon others. If all our hopes are to be blasted, if the republic is to go down, let us be found to the last moment standing ou the dick with the constitution of the United States waving over our heads. [Applause.]
Let the famalities of the Korth broak the constitution if such is their fell purpose. Let the responsibility be upon them. I shall speak presently more of their acts; but let not the South, let us not be the ones to commit the aggression. We went into the elections to consider the responsibility of the said:

"Should Georgia determine to go out of the Withdraw of the course for Georgia determine to go out of the world of the said:

"Should Georgia determine to go out of the Would commit any act of agreesion upon the rights of the South. As to those Northern States which had passed to those Northern States which had passed of unfriendly legislation towards the South. Mr. S. expressed his belief that an appeal should be made to such States to amend their statute in the matter complained of. Mr. S. strongly avoaed the proposition for a Convention to consider all these matters, and calmly and doliberately deoide upon the caurse for Georgia to take. Finally he said:

"Should Georgia determine to go out of the Would Commit any set of agreesion upon the rights of the South. As to the people of the Would Commit any set of agreesion upon the rights of the South and the wrong greesion upon the rights of the South and the would commit any set of agreesion upon the rights of the South and the would commit any set of agreesion upon the rights of the South and the would commit any set of agreesion upon the rights of the South and the would commit any set of agreesion upon the rights of the South and the would commit any set of mit the aggression. We went into the elec-

Ster against us.

But it is said Mr. Lincoln's policy and principles are against the Coustitution, and that if he carries them out it will prove destrocive of our rights. Let us not anticipate, a threatened evil. If he violates the Constitution then will come our time to act. Do not let us least it hereas for youth. In structive of our rights. Let us not anticipate, threatened evil. If he violates the Constitution then will come our time to act. Do not let us break it, because, forsooth, he may be does, that is the time for us to strike. (Appieuse.) I think it would be injudicious and unwise to do this sconer.—I do not auticipate that Mr. Lincoux will too anything to jeopard our eafety or security, wholever may be his apirit to do it; for he is bound by the constitutional checks that are thrown around him, which at this time one extent of the country to the other; comere thrown around him, which at this time one extent of the country to the other; con readers him powerless to do any great mischief. This shows the wisdom of our system. The President of the United States is no emperor, no dictator—he is clothed with no absolute power. He can do nothing, unless he is backed by power in Congress.

Thus also be the control of t where a Lincoln office-holder would not be people great. A failure! Why we are the admiration of the civilized world, and present the brightest hopes of mankind. this point:"

I have heard it mooted that no man in the State of Georgia, who is true to her interests, could hold office under Mr. Lincoln. But, I ask, who appoints to office? Not the President alone; the Senate has to concur. No man can be appointed without the consent of the Senate, Should any man the consent of the Senate. Should any man then refuse to hold office that was given to him by a Democratic Senate? [Mr. Toombs interrupted, and said if the Senate was Democratic, it was for Mr. Burckinkings.] Well, then, continued Mr. STEPHENS, I apprehend no man could be justly considered antrue to the interests of Georgia, or incur any disgrees, if the interests of mails.

Georgia required it, to hold an office which a Breckinnidge Senate had given him, even though Mr. Lincoln should be President. [Prolonged applause, mingled with entertain dillerent views from me on this subject. I do not question their right to do so; I would not impugn their motives in so doing, nor will I undertake to say that this government of our fathers is perfect. There is nothing perfect in this world of a human origin. Nothing connected with human nature, from man himself, to any of his works.

You may select the wicest and hear them. You may select the wisest and best men for your judges, and yet how many defects are there in the administration of justice! You the most prudent, pious and able Divines in rovernment.

But that this government of our fathers, with all its defects, comes nearer the objects with all its defects; comes marrer the objects of all good governments than any other on the face of the earth, is my settled conviction. Contrast it now with any on the face of the earth. (England said Mr. Toombe) Stephens—England, my friend says. Well, that is the nuxt best, I grant; but I think we have improved upon England. Statesmen tried their apprentice hand on the government of Frederic and the now way. ment of England, and then ours was made.
Ours sprung from that, avoiding many of its defects, taking most of the good, and leaving out many of its errors, and from the whole constructing and building up this model republic—the best which the history of the world gives any account of.

Compare, my friends, this government disappointed demagogues, but the apontsn-with that of Spain, Mexico, the South American Republics, Germany, Ireland. Are there any some of that down-trodden nation religious men, the representatives of no local there any some of that down-trodden nation here to-night?—Prussia, or if you travel further east, to Turkey or China. Where will you go, following the sun in its circuit round our globe, to find a government that better protects the liberties of its people, and secures to them the blessings we enjoy?—(Applause.) I think that one of the evils that because the in a sandair of them. hat beset us is a surfeit of liberty, an exu-paramos of the priceless blessings for which we are ungrateful."

Mr. STEPHENS than reviewed, at some ength, the evils and grievances of which | shut one's eyes to danger; better to know Mr. Toombs had complained. These were, first, "the fishing bounties, paid mostly to the sailors of New England." Mr. STE-PHENS showed that these bounties originated under the administration of a Southern President, and "during the forty-eight years" that our government has been administered fore it points at the mote in the eye of its by "Southern Presidents," "no one of them," said Mr. S., "ever set his administration against the principle or policy of these bounties."

Mr. Toomes' next grievance was the Tarid, and Mr. Stephens answered him in this political parties and contests, our retired and quiet pesition does not exclude the prefound conclusive manner:

"Well, let us look at that for a moment About the time I commenced noticing public matters, this question was egitating the country almost as fearfully as the slave question now is. In 1832, when I was in cellege, South Carolina was ready to nullify college, South Carolina was ready to nullify or seede from the Union on this account. And what have we seen? The tariff no longer distracts the public councils. Reason has triumphed! The present tariff was voted for by Massachusetts and South Carolina.—The lion and the lamb lie down together—every man in the Senate and House from Massachusetts and South Carolina, I think, voted for it, as did my honorable friend himself. And fit be true, to use the figure of speech of my honorable friend, that every i'These, then, were the three main grievances or grounds of complaint against the general system of our government and its workings—I mean the admiristration of the North Carolina ?? proceeds as follows: workings—I mean the administration of the Federal government. As to the sets of the federal states, I shall speak presently, but these three were the main ones against the common head. Now suppose it to be administed that all of these are evils in the system, do they overlalance and outweigh the advantages and great good which this same other States. I trust, my countrymen, you will be still and silent. I am addressing your good sense. I am giving you my views in a calm and dispassionate manner, and if any of you differ with me, you can on any other occasion give your views as I am doing now, and let reason and true patriotism decide between us. In my judgment, I say, under such circumstances, there would be no possible disgrace for a Southern man to hold office. No man will be suffered to be appointed, I have no doubt, who is not true to the Constitution, if Southern Senators are true to their trusts, as I cannot permit myself to doubt that they will be.

Alabama paper containing the declaration of the Baptist Convention of that State, to whole occasional allusion has been made in telegrams from that direction. This body is one of the largest and most infinential ecomposed of delegates (laymen and elergy) from churches and from numerous religious and benevolent societies. The prominent religious associations of this denomination in several other States are also represented. Among those present on this occasion, I recognize the names of distinguished clergymen Alabama paper containing the declaration of which occasional allusion has been made in FURNISHING GOODS from churches and from numerous religious 216 EAST WATER STREET. ognize the names of distinguished clergymen Mr. Stepuens next proceeded to express from Tennessee, Virginia, South Carolina, his sense of the value of Union and of the Georgia and Mississippi; Professors from at excellence of our system of government. Court of the State, a men of rare ability, ind a noble specimen of the Christian gentleman. A report of the proceedings says: 'It was the last act of the body. (Nov. 12.) After the paper was read, a few remarks were made, proyer was offered, all rose from their kness and voted unanimously, members of the Convention, the congregation, women as well as men."

These are simple facts, and I mention them to show by what class of men this deliberate and solemu action was taken; that it was not a trick of hot-heated, fireeating politicians, the evanescent ebulition of interest, of no political creed; the partisans of no faction. Does it not indicate that this "disaffection" is more general and more intense than Northern people are willing to admit; and that it prevades all classes, and appeals to the religious and and patriotic sentiments of the people. I am no politician-no alarmist, but I cannot think it wise to blink the light, to the worst and provide for it."

The following is the document: "The members of the Boptist State Convention of Alabama, though assembled for different purposes, find ourselves together at a moment when issues of the most grave and a moment when issues of the most grow that eserious character, are brought upon the country. While possessing no authority to pledge or kind the churches or religious bodies we represent, and expressly dischiming any wish in any form to do so. "What are you a doing here ?" she inquir-"What are you a doing here?" she inquired, sharply.
"I came to see if I was wanted," the screwant stammered; and with a searching look. Miss Ethel swept out of the room.

Mrs. Gurdlestone had always been in delicate health, and, since her husband's death had almost entirely kept her own room, where Miss Ethel was in constant attendance upon her. Mr. Silsa, however, frequently came in to consult her upon business matters or to that away an hour. Now it was Miss Ethel's turn to be ill; she was so un. ters or to chat away an hour. Now it was Miss Ethel's turn to be ill; she was so un-well the day after that on which Rester had heard the reported conversation that she was obliged to keep her bed, and the doctor who attended Mrs Gordlestons was called in to age her. Mr. Silas said it was disease of the She has been ill about three days, when the doctor, calling in one evening, it came on to rain heavily, and he staid to diamer. Throughout the meal the rain roured down in torents, and continued so long that Mr. sented, after much persuasion, to accept the shelter of the Pollards for the night, for he lived some miles off, and must cross a wild and open country before he reached his home. It was most fortunate that he did remain. During the evening Miss Ethel was much worse, and twice he went up attirs to visit her. It was determined that the gentlemen should sit up all night, and that Hester should watch with the invalid thought. As it was, her thoughts dwelt upon it, she searcely knew why.

For many weeks after the funeral the whole house was partially shut up and darkened; the searchts were again changed, except Hester, who would have gone also had not her mistress implored her to remain. The sick hady seemed to droop more and more. She never left her room; she never read or warked; she haddle ages not had. read or worked; she hardly ever spoke, ex-oept sometimes with Mr. Silas about legal business, of which there appeared to Hea-

She tore the surtain of the bed on one eide. No, there was no one but herself pres-ent. Without another thought, she rushed i into her mistress's room and threw herself upon the bed, clutched the cold lace in her hands, clasped the cold form to her breast. sobbing and mosning distractedly over the dear, dear friend she had lost. There was the old frightened look upon the dead lady's face, the same look which the sister's face had worn, the same which Hester remem-bered on the face of Mr. Ralph, and there was upon the bosom of the corpus a small round mark like the prick of a pin, just over the heart.

The house was soon alarmed, and the ser vants came crowding in as they had done before on a similar occasion; but Hester— terrifi-d, stupified and giddy with the horrible thoughts which possessed her-got away from them all, and to avoid any further from them all, and to avoid any forther questions, sought refuge in the garden. She walked straight to the most lonely part at the back of the house, and ast down in a little rained arbor to think what she should do. She had not been there long when she saw, lying right before her on the path, another straightened hair pin!

She stooped to raise it, trembling as she did so. As she ruse, holding it in her fingers, a dark form passed between her and the sun, casting a cold shadow upon her, and looking up, she read in Silas's white face the certainty that he knew her thought. Then, with a shriek—

Then, with a shrick-

Days, and weeks, and months passed by, and Hester's wits still wandered. Her good aunt Sophy brought her up to town, and change of scene at length restored her to her former bastth.

Atter having married, and survived her hasband, Mrs. Haddock became the launders and the launders with the launders with the launders and the launders are launders and the launders and the launders are launders are launders and the launders are launders and the launders are launders and the launders are launders are launders and the launders are launders and the launders are launders are launders are launders and the launders are launders are launders are launders and the launders are launders are launders and the launders are lau husband, Mrs. Haddock became the lanndress in this gloomy old honse, where now she sits telling us the story.
And Mr. Silas. What of him? He is the owner of the Pollards now, and of a large house in town, and has many servants.—
Mrs. Haddock could tell you strange stories of wild orgies, gambling, drunkenness, and debauchery in which they say, he spent some twenty years. But that is over; and for these ten years past, he has lain bed-ridsome twenty years. But that is over; and for these ten years past, he has lain bed-riden. Without a friend or relation, with no one to care for him or attend to him, save his hired nurses—dragging on a wretched existence from day to day, with nothing to live for, yet afraid to die; paralyzed, helpless, unutterably lonely and miserable, old Silas Gardlestone awaits the dread summons calling him to the tribunal before which he must render an account of his deeds. God be mereiful to him! be merciful to him!

Dr. Melton, a resident of this city, arrived from Fort Scott on Saturday avening, whither he had been on business connected with the Land Office. He reports that Montgomery in porson was encamped within 5 miles of that place, with 75 or 80 men. A detachment had entered Fort Scott, and finding the Government officers field, and the Court, which was to have been held on Monday last, broken up, they seemed to be satisfied and did not molest the town in any way whatever. Montgomery's object for the present, it seems, was only the marder of the officers, thereby breaking up the Court, present to the officers, thereby breaking up the Court, and preventing the trial of some 30 of his friends in outlody. He publicly declared that he will now remain at Ft. Scott to prethat he will now remain at Ft.
